Participants

Members of the European Parliament, Members of Parliaments of the EU27, parliamentary civil servants, government representatives, EUFORES non-parliamentary members, selected high level experts.

Information

IPM22 is organized in close cooperation with the Parliament of Germany, which naturally makes it a high-level political event. The conference will discuss core topics on European and national level related to the energy transition:

- European Green Deal
- REPowerEU
- Renewable Energy Directive
- Energy Efficiency Directive
- Energy Performance of Buildings Directive
- Consequences of the Ukraine war for the energy transition
- National implementation of EU policies
- Exchange of experience between EU and national levels and between national parliaments
- Experience of Germany in promoting the energy transition despite the recent situation

IPM22 aims to contribute to sharing know-how for a correct implementation of the aforementioned legislation, while focusing particularly on the German current situation. Therefore, the legislative proposals covered under the EU Green Deal and REPowerEU and the current situation of energy policy developments in Germany will be top of the agenda of the IPM22.

IPM22 attracts members of parliament from all over Europe as well as core members of the EUFORES network. The first conference day focuses on renewable energy sources and related topics and the second conference day discusses energy efficiency. At this high-level meeting, top speakers from the German parliament, the European Parliament, national governments, the European Commission, industry representatives and many other experts will gather to discuss renewable energy and energy efficiency in the light of the EU Green Deal, the climate emergency and the war in Ukraine.

The conference offers excellent networking opportunities throughout the conference, as well as during a welcome reception on the night before the conference starts and a gala dinner held on the first conference day.
